Press Release

LNG-Fueled Expansion for Air Energi in Australasia

The massive investment in Australasian LNG projects has encouraged the Air Energi Group to expand its operations in the region. New Air Energi offices in Brisbane and Perth will be operational by early April, followed by a planned opening in Papua New Guinea in the second half of 2009.

Matthew Smith, Vice President Australasia is confident of the success of this expansion initiative. He commented:

“ Over US$80bn worth of LNG projects are scheduled for start up in the region within the next five years. Our LNG experience in the US, Europe and Middle East means that we will add value to our clients activities by transferring qualified personnel who can add immediate value.

Not only can we bring expertise from these foreign locations, we will also offer a significant number of opportunities to local and expatriate Australasians who wish to work on these world-scale projects.
